

María Fernanda Ezeta

She has a Bachelor's Degree in International Relations from the Autonomous Technologic Institute of Mexico (ITAM) and a Master's Degree in Conflict Transformation from the University of Granada (UGR), Spain.

She was a coordinator of the five-year program "Human Trafficking Combat through assistance to victims and the strengthening of institutional capabilities" of the International Organization for Migration (IOM) Office in Mexico. She also coordinated programs aimed to women, girls, boys and adolescent migrants. Within this framework, she worked with agencies of the United Nations in Mexico and several state and federal government institutions.

She is currently working as an independent consultant and has written several documents in the topic, among those:

"Human Trafficking. Basic Aspects". CIM-OAS, OMI, INM, Inmujeres, Mexico, 2006

"Migrant Women and Human Trafficking" in Women Affected by the Migration Phenomenon in Mexico. An approximation from Gender Perspective. National Institute for Women, Mexico, 2007

"Gender and Migration: Recommendations for the construction of pragmatic policies" in Memory of the Seminar "Women and Migration". Regional Conference for Migration (RCM), San Salvador, El Salvador, July, 2007

"Document of Orientation on human trafficking for consular officers". International Organization for Migration, Mexico, 2009

"The Human Trafficking for sexual exploitation in Ciudad Juárez, Chihuahua. Exploratory diagnose". IOM, USAID, SeRe, 2011 (not published).