

Mónica Ferrín

Finished her B.A. in Political Sciences at the University of Santiago de Compostela in 2003. Since then, she has always been involved in survey research and the study of citizens' attitudes and behavior. She got her PhD at the European University Institute (EUI) in Florence, where she worked mainly on citizens' perceptions and evaluations of their democratic systems in Europe. As an outcome of her PhD research project, she is member of the design questionnaire team of the 6th Round of the European Social Survey, on 'Europeans' understandings and evaluations of democracy'. Currently she is researcher at the University of Zürich where she works on several projects related to citizens' attitudes and citizenship.