

Óscar Jaimes Bello

Currently serves as Director for Government Information Development in the General Directorate of Government, Crime and Justice Statistics at INEGI and coordinates the methodological and analytical development to measure crime victimization, violence, fear to crime, and issues related to governance, such as corruption and the quality of the public services.

He graduated in Administration from the National Autonomous University of Mexico (UNAM) and holds a Master Degree in Policies and Development Management from the University of Manchester (United Kingdom) and a Ph.D. in Social and Political Sciences from the Ibero-American University (Mexico).

His training involves also courses on governance and accountability offered by the Center for Economic Research and Teaching (CIDE) and on corruption control by the Central European University, based in Budapest (Hungary).

Within the Federal Public Administration, he has served as Director of Studies of Transparency and Accountability in the Ministry of Public Administration and as Director of Sectorial Coordination in the Inter-ministerial Commission for Transparency and Combating Corruption.