

Jesper Johnsen

Jesper Johnsen specialises in how to improve and evaluate governance and anti-corruption reforms in developing countries. A Senior Advisor at the U4 Anti-Corruption Resource Centre at Chr. Michelsen Institute (CMI) he conducts research, provides policy advice, and delivers training for U4 partners and broader audiences. Mr Johnsen leads U4's thematic work on Evaluation & Measurement and Fragile States. He is also Head of Training, responsible for overall coordination of U4's training portfolio. Johnsen is currently engaged on a major CMI research programme on the political economy of governance in Malawi.

Mr Johnsen has practical experience in evaluating a range of national integrity institutions, such as anti-corruption agencies and supreme audit institutions, conducting anti-corruption country-level assessments, and establishing indicators and monitoring and evaluation frameworks. His areas of expertise span across the areas of policy and programme design, risk management, and evaluation.

Prior to joining CMI, Mr Johnsen worked as Senior Consultant in the Public Administration & Governance practice area for an international consultancy. He recently successfully defended his PhD in Development Studies from the University of Cambridge, and also holds an M.Phil degree from this university. Moreover, Johnsen completed a MA and BA in Political Science from the University of Copenhagen. Country work experience include Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Cambodia, Kosovo, Liberia, Malawi, Rwanda, Tajikistan, Tanzania, United Arab Emirates, Vietnam, Yemen, and Zambia.