

Marie Laberge

Ms. Marie Laberge is UNDP's Governance Assessment Specialist for Africa. She provides support to governance assessment initiatives that are nationally-owned, participatory, and responsive to national and regional priorities, such as the Strategy for the Harmonization of Statistics in Africa (SHaSA). Prior to joining UNDP's Regional Service Centre for Africa in 2011, Marie spent three years at the UNDP Oslo Governance Centre, working with stakeholders globally on the collection of governance data and its application to policymaking. She also developed methodologies and training programmes, and edited a series of "Users' Guides" for measuring governance in various thematic areas. Previously, Marie worked at the Colombo Regional Centre to support the roll-out of the MDG Initiative for Asia and the Pacific. Prior to joining UNDP, Marie worked with Forum-Asia, a regional human rights NGO based in Bangkok. She holds a Master's in Human Security Policies (University of British Columbia) and a degree in Economics and International Business (McGill University).
