

Francisco Rivas Rodríguez

He is the Director General of the Citizen Security, Justice and Legality National Observatory and a Consultant for Mexico for the National Strategy Information Center.

He holds a Degree in Economics and Commerce from the Università degli Studi di Perugia, BA in Psychology from the Autonomous University of Baja California. He has an expertise on culture of lawfulness from the Latin American Faculty of Social Sciences in Mexico, he holds a Masters in Psychology from the Center for Technology and Higher Studies of Mexico and a Ph.D. in Global Development study by the Autonomous University of Baja California and University of California at Los Angeles. He has several publications in the field of culture of lawfulness.

Research areas: Public Safety, transparency and culture of lawfulness.