

2nd International Conference
on Governance, Crime and Justice Statistics 2014

Juyoung Song

She is an Associate Research Fellow at the Korean Institute of Criminology (KIC). She has earned a Ph.D. from School of Criminal Justice at Michigan State University. Before she joined KIC, She was an Assistant professor at the Department of Criminology, University of West Georgia. Her research focuses on pathways to underage prostitution among female youth in South Korea. She has recently published work in the Journal of Interpersonal Violence and Computers and Human Behavior. Her current research interests include comparative study on gender issue, juvenile delinquency by using both qualitative and quantitative method. She also wrote a book titled "Big Data Analysis" in 2013.